The Country Paper will be concentrated on the Case of Mongolia with regard to public financial management system. It will consist of the above-mentioned three chapters.

In the First chapter I am going to briefly describe the current system of public financial management in Mongolia just to give an idea to readers on how it is functioning and how it is transparent and accountable to the public.

Second chapter will be devoted to the role of the SAI Mongolia for ensuring transparency and accountability in the public financial management. Government auditing is a part of public financial management system and therefore plays an important role in strengthening public financial management. SAI Mongolia has legal mandate to conduct both financial statement and performance audits and through these functions it makes its contribution to the transparency and accountability of government entities.

In the last chapter, I am going to write about on-going process of reforming state budgeting system and its likely impact on transparency and accountability of public financial management in Mongolia, as well as challenges facing to this process.
